

Chapter	Description	Content
	Preface
	To my grandson
	Abbreviations used
	PART I
1.	Terms relating to Constitution and Concept and Character of Constitutional Law	2.2.2.1 Application of Constitutional Doctrines of 'Checks and Balances' and 'Separation of Powers': Practice in the United States of America
1.1	Law and State	2.2.3 Principal Rules of Socialist Legality and the Principle of Unified Power
1.1.1	Law	2.2.3.1 The Principle of Unified Power: Practice in the People's Republic of China
1.1.2	State	2.2.3.2 The Principle of Unified Power: Practice in DPR of Korea (North Korea)
1.2	Sovereignty, Sovereign Power or State Power and Constitution	2.2.3.3 The Principle of Unified Power: Practice in the Socialist Republic of the Union of Burma (1974-1988)
1.2.1	Sovereign state	2.2.3.4 The Principle of Unified Power: Practice in the Socialist Republic of Viet Nam
1.2.2	Terms relating to Constitution and Constitutionalism	2.2.3.5 Concentration of State Power: The Legal System of 'Turkmenistan'
1.2.3	Fundamental Right, Human Right and Ombudsman	2.3 Hans Kelsen and his works
1.3	Government and the State	2.3.1 Kelsen's Legal Theory: 'Doctrine of Constitutional Review'
1.3.1	The Legislature	2.3.1.1 'Austria Experience': constitutional jurisdiction
1.3.2	The Executive	2.3.1.2 'French Experience': constitutional jurisdiction
1.3.3	The Judiciary	2.3.1.3 'German Experience': constitutional jurisdiction
1.4	Amending Constitution: Constitutional Change	2.3.1.4 'Italian Experience': constitutional jurisdiction
1.5	Constitution, Structural Feature, Objectives, Concept and Character of Constitutional Law	2.3.1.5 'Poland Experience': constitutional jurisdiction
1.5.1	Defination of the term 'Constitution'	2.3.1.6 'Russian Experience': constitutional jurisdiction
1.5.2	Structural Features and Objectives of a Constitution	2.3.1.7 'Spanish Experience': constitutional jurisdiction
1.5.3	Meaning, Concept and Character of Constitutional Law	2.3.2 Expansion of Constitutional Courts: from Europe to Asia, Africa and Latin America
	PART II
2	State Theory, Constitutional Theory and Principles	2.3.3 Asian States and Constitutional Jurisdiction
2.1	History Background relating to State Theory	2.3.3.1 Kingdom of 'Cambodia' and Constitutional Jurisdiction
2.1.1	Background History of State and Constitutional Theory	2.3.3.2 'Indonesia Experience': constitutional jurisdiction
2.1.2	Jean Bodin and his works	2.3.3.3 The Kyrgyz Republic: Constitutional Chamber and constitutional review
2.2	Montesquieu and his works	2.3.3.4 Myanmar and Constitutional Jurisdiction: Constitutional Tribunal and constitutional review
2.2.1	Doctrine of Separation of Powers
2.2.2	Doctrine of Checks and Balances
		PART III
3.	Classification of Constitution	3.1 Nature of State
3.1	Nature of State	3.1.1 Form of government: 'Republic or Monarchy'
3.1.1	Form of government: 'Republic or Monarchy'	3.1.1.1 Constitutional Monarchies with Ceremonial Monarchs
		3.1.1.2 Constitutional Monarchies with Active Monarchs
		3.1.1.3 Absolute Monarchies
		3.1.2 Military junta States
		3.1.3 'Form of State' and State Structure
		3.1.3.1 Unitary State
		3.1.3.2 Unitary States and unicameral legislatures
		3.1.3.3 Unitary States and bicameral legislatures
		3.1.4 Federal State
		3.1.4.1 Variations of Federal Type
		3.1.4.2 Federal States and unicameral legislatures
		3.1.4.3 Federal States and bicameral legislatures
		3.1.4.4 'Federal States' and federating units of the Nations
		3.1.4.5 Characteristics of federalism and federal State
		3.1.4.6 Federalism - Federation - Confederation
		3.1.4.7 Defunct Federal or Federated States in the World
		3.2 Nature of Constitution
		3.2.1 Written and Unwritten
		3.2.1.1 United Kingdom
		3.2.1.2 New Zealand
		3.2.1.3 Israel
		3.2.1.4 Written Constitution
		3.2.2 'Rigid' and 'Flexible'
		3.3 Nature of Legislature
		3.3.1 Comparison on Legislature
		3.3.1.1 Qualification, Privileges, Immunities and Removal of a member of 'Legislature'
		3.3.1.2 Constituency and Representative System
		3.3.1.3 Regular Term of Legislature
		3.3.1.4 Decision Making: Legislation and Legislature
		3.3.1.4.1 Example I: France
		3.3.1.4.2 Example II: Germany
		3.3.1.4.3 Example III: India
		3.3.1.4.4 Example IV: Myanmar
		3.3.1.4.5 Example V: Russia
		3.3.1.4.6 Example VI: United Kingdom (U.K)
		3.3.1.4.7 Example VII: United States of America (U.S.A)
		3.4 Nature of Executive
		3.4.1 Parliamentary Executive
		3.4.1.1 Parliamentary Republics
		3.4.1.2 Mixed Republican System
		3.4.1.3 Parliamentary 'Constitutional Monarchies'
		3.4.1.4 Single Party System and Parliamentary Executive
		3.4.2 Presidential Executive
		3.4.2.1 Presidential Republics
		3.4.2.2 Full Presidential Systems without a Prime Minister
		3.4.2.3 Presidential Systems with a Prime Minister
		3.4.2.4 Semi-presidential System
		3.4.3 'System of Governance' in the Republic of the Union of Myanmar
		3.5 Nature of Judiciary
		3.5.1 Law and Judiciary: Judicial Principles and Courts
		3.5.2 Judiciary of Britain (U.K)
		3.5.3 Judiciary of France
		3.5.4 Judiciary of Germany
		3.5.5 Judiciary of India
		3.5.6 Judiciary of Myanmar
		3.5.7 Judiciary of Russia
		3.5.8 Judiciary of United States of America
		3.5.9 Major Legal System and Interpretation of Law in the Judiciary
		3.5.9.1 Common Law System and Interpretation of Law
		3.5.9.2 Civil Law System and Interpretation of Law
		3.5.9.3 Socialist Law System and Interpretation of Law
		3.5.9.4 Table of "Constitutional Classification" on the Constitutions of the UN. Member States.
		Table (5) UN. Member States and Constitutional Classification
		References :-
		I Constitutions and Constitutional Court Laws
		II Books, Journals and Articles
		Autobiography of 'Tin Aung Aye' "the Author of the Book"
		Publication of the Author, 'Prof. Dr. Tin Aung Aye'

PREFACE

The book, 'Constitutions and Constitutional Courts of the Nations' written by Prof. Dr. Tin Aung Aye, is colourfully expressed in three Parts.

Part I: It deals with the term, terminology and phrases relating to structure and objective of a constitution; and concept and character of constitutional law.

Part II: It touches the constitutional doctrines, theories and principles; and those are clearly defined and elaborated by Tables 1, 2, 3 and 4: "Close View on Constitutional Courts of Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America and Caribbean States" respectively, of all parts of the world; and the theoretical applications of the respective selected States are illustrated as well.

Explicitly, the constitutional doctrine of Hans Kelsen revealed in his scholastic work of "Constitutional Review for Constitutional Justice" is noticeably addressed.

Part III: It sorts out the constitutional classification of the constitutions of 193 Member States of the United Nations, by using international certified methods, principles and rules. The author gave a highlight on "Federalism, Federal and Federated States", and classified by nature of Legislative, Executive, and Judiciary of the States.

Table 5: "UN Member States and Constitutional Classification" will be the paramount description of the author's finding; and of the book: "Constitutions and Constitutional Courts of the Nations".

Believing that this book will be helpful instrument for those who are learning and studying the subject, 'Constitutional Law', and working in the legal and its related field.

Thanks to Prof. Dr. Tin May Tun, Department of Law, University of Distance Education, and U Hla Myo, Deputy Director of the Office of Constitutional Tribunal of the Union for their tremendous assistance for collecting the legal literature of Laws and Constitutions.

U Kyaw Thu and staff of Zayar Thukha Printing House would also be greatly appreciated for printing and publication of this book with their unique effort.

As the most invaluable assets for incomparable love, care and support in one's life, each of the family members should be deserved to express the deepest thanks.

(The Author)
dated : 9/8/2015
Yangon.